Title and abstract of the doctoral thesis (within 150 words)The victim in front of penal justice

The victim`s rights have constantly evolved. This evolution-in favor of the victim- has always been laid down by requirements of two type. The first one in a requirement of protection of the victim. The preliminary article of the French code of criminal procedure, which holds ' the judicial authority ensures that victims are informed and that their rights are respected throughout any criminal process', displays that principal in an unequivocal way. The second requirement is an egalitarian requirement. The legislator tried to institute equality between the victim and the person under judicial examination, in order to guarantee all the private litigants the same prerogatives during the criminal proceeding
